Subject: RE: URGENT Fwd: [External] Chemours - Response to DEQ partial suspension notice

Hi Carol,

Unfortunately, we do not have an estimate on timing right now. We continue to receive information, which impacts our understanding of the releases. We need to have a comprehensive understanding of those releases before we can complete the assessment.

Thanks,

Adam

Thanks, Adam. Do we have a time frame? Even a general one.

Hi Carol,

Here's a brief update:

The EPA's Office of Pollution Prevention and Toxics is conducting a thorough review of all information available to revise their risk assessment for GenX and its dimer acid precursor. This includes requesting additional information from Chemours, working with EPA's regional offices, and examining test data that have become available since the initial risk assessment was completed for the 2008 Premanufacture Notices.

Thanks,
Adam

Maria & Adam,

Can you all provide a brief update on the status of the risk assessment NC can use this morning? Tim was also sent this message. I think it would be best to have one summary from EPA.

Thanks
Carol

Chemours has indicated it will be in compliance with the provisions in our Nov. 16th Notice.

We have a House Select Committee on River Water Quality tomorrow starting at 9am. We were adding more photo slides on groundwater data to the presentation after I left the office today – I will send you our final slides along with the inspection information when available tomorrow. We have thought the House Committee or the Environmental Review Commission would benefit from hearing directly from EPA on all the work being done from the health study aspects. If you have thoughts on if/when, let us know.

Thank you sending us your findings and photos when you return from documenting the site conditions tomorrow.

Also appreciate you taking the second set of samples for the Kuraray and DuPont wastestreams.
